Congress To-Day.

SENATE.-Numerous petitions and reports were presented.

Mr. Underwood presented several petitions, praying that Congress will make provision for the payment of the Texan State bonds to their full amount.

Mr. HANLIN reported a bill granting a re gister to the brig Avon. It was ordered to be engrossed.

Mr. Foors introduced a bill granting land to the State of Mississippi for railroad purposes; which was ordered to a third reading.

Mr. Gwin introduced a bill giving the right of way for a line of telegraph from the Mississippi river to the Pacific ocean.

Mr. Foors called up his resolution declaring the Compromise to be a definitive settlement of the question of slavery; and was addressing the Senate in defence of his course on this subject when our report closed at 24 o'clock.

House or Representatives .- The following is the resolution introduced yesterday by Mr. CLINGMAN, viz:

"Resolved, That so much of the seventeenth standing rule as provides for the admission of certain persons therein named within the hall of the House of Representatives be so modified as to embrace Governor Louis Kossuth, of Hungary, and that the Speaker of the House be requested to communicate the same to Governor Kossuth.

Several Executive communications were laid before the House.

The bill from the Senate to establish a branch mint of the United States in California was referred to the Committee of Ways and Means.

Mr. MARSHALL, of Kentucky, introduced : bill for purchasing the outstanding stock of the Louisville and Portland Canal, and enlarging the canal to suit the wants of commerce; which was referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals. On motion of Mr. CHANDLER it was resolved that the Speaker of the House of Representatives cause such arrangements to be made in the interior of the hall as may be deemed necessary to the comfort and health of the mem-

Petitions were presented, and several reports made from standing committees, and at halfpast two o'clock the House adjourned until Monday.

Congressional Joking.

Mr. Bayly, of Virginia, was the Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means of the last Congress, and, as such, the House looked to and relied upon him for correct information on all financial matters. Mr. Webster, the Secretary of State, had given to the Barings & Co. of London, without authority of law, a contract to pay the Mexican indemnity, which inflicted on the treasury of the United States a loss of Mexico. On the bill making the appropriation after making many false statements for the purpose of deceiving and misleading the House, he assailed the Mexican government in the most offensive manner, and intimated that, if the United States Government were to send the specie to Mexico to make the payment, the Mexican government would connive at its robbery on the road. Being interrogated by Mr. tract his calumnies with the pitiable excuse that

The peculiar circumstances in which amusing because more harmless and less offenve to the House, which has honored him with that high mark of its confidence. We see that President for information in regard to the ille-gal trial and unjust sentence and punishment (twenty millions of dollars.") of Mr. Thrasher. As Mr. Bayly has been recently toadying to Mr. Webster, with the confi-House by his influence, we were at first surmatter of the next Presidency. What is the imprisonment of a dezen Thrashers, or the violation of a dozen treaties by the Cuban authorities, to Mr. Webster, compared to the Presi-Mr. Bayly, trouble him about such small matters now? We discover, by looking at the proceedings of the Senate, that Com. Stockton had previously called on the President for the same information, and that Mr. Bayly's resolution of his Congressional jokes.

MUNIFICENT DONATION .- We learn from note, published in the Baltimore papers of this morning, addressed to Joshua Vansant, esq., that Thomas Swann, esq., has made a donation of $2,000 to the Maryland Institute, to be appropriated in aid of the School of Applied Chemistry which it is proposed to organize in remarks that the donation is a noble one, and has been most wisely bestowed in fostering and encouraging the objects of an institute which is every day more largely developing its capabilities of usefulness, and the growth and pros perity of which may be regarded as in a great measure indicative of that of our whole city.

THE REV. JOHN P. DONELAN .- It is stated that this gentleman, formerly pastor of St. lar functions at the church of St. Vincent de Paul, in Baltimore, has been appointed to a people, why not look to Cuba? professorship in St. Mary's College, in that city.

Kossuth and England.

It is said that the Turkish Envoy lately called upon Mr. Lawrence to ask what number of ships our Government would send to defend the Turks, in case the liberation of Kossuth should induce Russia to march upon Constantinople. Mr. Lawrence could do no more than shrug his shoulders, and refer him to Congress. He then went to Lord Palmerston, who, in answer to the same inquiry, said, " The whole British navy."

Now, why did Lord Palmerston reply so promptly and emphatically? Who does not know that, from the days of Catharine until now, the Russian government have had a fixed and unchanging purpose of seizing Constantinople? And who does not know that the purpose of England has been as fixed and determined to prevent it? Who does not know that Protestant England has done all in her power to uphold the Catholic Metternich? And why? Was it not because Austria and her Hungarian kingdom were interposed between Russia and Constantinople? Events have thrown Austria and Hungary into the arms of Russia; and England now sees in Kossuth the person, who, aided by her, may restore Hungary and arrest the progress of Russia. But she sees that, in case of a European war, the United States being neutral, we must be the carriers for the world, and especially for the north of Europe, and thus become the first of maritime nations; and therefore England wishes to embroil us in a war with Russia. But England is well aware that the people of the United States are jealous of England, and that we are pledged to noninterference in the conflicts of Europe. England knows that if she were to propose an alliance against Russia, we would refuse it. Kossuth ought to have known this; and hence the demonstrations made by him in England, and the fact that England interposed in his behalf, and is now prepared to form an alliance with us in a movement against Russia, should admonish us that that alliance would promote the selfish ends of England. The pretence is sympathy for Hungary and for the cause of free institu tions. We would point to India and to Ireland, and demand that England shall do justice to India and to Ireland before she asks us to unite our destinies with her in a conflict with Russia or the continental powers of Europe. Let us see what the condition of India is. The Edinburgh Review of January, 1841, says: "Till the other day not an Englishman owned an acre of land in India, and well was it for the people of that country, that those who, in the early days of our ascendency, were infamous for plundering provinces, were prevented from appropriating the provinces to themselves. Still the effect of the restriction was to check, almost to preclude, the growth of an Anglo-Indian interest, possessed of any interest in Downing street, or St. Stephens. It is noto-rious on the other hand, how well West India property is represented in both Houses. should therefore feel that we have undertaken a hopeless cause, were we not convinced that we shall be able to demonstrate that England cannot persevere in injustice to India without inflicting deep injury upon herself."

This extract shows that as late as January, 1841, the East India interest was struggling with the West Indian-that until the other day not an Englishman owned an acre of land in India. Why did England change her policy in relation to India? Why did she repeal the duty which gave to West India the supply of the British market, and excluded the raw products of East India? Why was it that one hundred milabout $612,600, and a much greater loss on lions of British East India subjects had no influence in the British parliament? Why did the to pay the indemnity, a debate arose about this reviewer deem it hopeless to plead the cause of contract, which Mr. Bayly defended with great India, unless he could demonstrate that England zeal. In his eagerness to serve his friends, cannot persevere in injustice to India without inflicting deep injury on herself? Let the same writer answer; he says: .

"The relation of India to England is very different from that in which we stand to any other of our transmarine possessions. Our colonies take our manufactures and pay us for them, and our manufacturers and ship-owners make their respective profits by these transactions. India also buys our manufactures to a Brown, of Mississippi, he was compelled to re- large and increasing extent, and, if we govern he "spoke jocularly!"

Mr. Bayly is now Chairman of the Committee of Foreign Relations, and has recently been pershe is placed render her tributary to us to a very large amount. * * * In the whole, we are persuaded that the amount of public and private remittances from India, for which

The same writer proceeds: "India, making such payments, is justified in demanding that dent expectation of being made Speaker of the her means of rendering them should be as much facilitated as possible-that none of the artiprised that he should thus trouble Mr. Webster cles in which she would, if unshackled, desire about Thrasher's case, while his (Mr. W.'s) at- to make them, should be virtually excluded tention is engrossed with the more important from our market, in order to give advantage to the produce of more favored dependencies; and that England, benefitting so much by the connex ion, should discharge its counterpart obligation by placing her, which is all that she seeks, or dency? And why does his friend and defender, a footing of equality with her foreign territo-

We beg the reader to remember that these are the words of an able British writer-that they show that India pays twenty millions of dollars to England, for which England makes was an unmeaning farce, only another sample no return, and that India is the great mart for the consumption of British merchandise. Well might Lord Palmerston say to the Turkish Envoy, we will send the whole British navy to avert the progress of Russia, for Russia covets Constantinople, because it is the highway to India. England may therefore well say to Kossuth, we will interpose for Hungary; but why should the United States do so? Is it because we desire to wage a war for civil liberty connexion with the institute. The American If this be so, why go to Hungary? Where is Ireland? Where is India? Where is Mexico? Where is Cuba? Where is Sto. Domingo?

It is said that there are in the United States 7,500,000 Irishmen and the descendants of Irishmen, driven from the homes of their ancestors by an oppression as grievous as the Austrian despotism. If we must take part in the struggle for liberty, why not demand the freedom of those whose blood flows in our veins? If we Matthew's (Roman Catholic) church, in this must engage in European wars, why not humble city, and for several years past exercising simi- the pride of despotic England? If we must intervene in behalf of a groaning, suffering

[Communicated.] Small Notes.

MR. EDITOR: I notice that Mr. Bowie, of Maryland, has introduced an inquiry into the expediency of providing further enactments against the issue and circulation of small notes n the District of Columbia. Is it not fair to nquire whether this measure, so likely to be beneficial to the large bankers here, will not have the effect of benefiting the banks of Maryland also, at the expense of the people of the District? Will it not give to these banks and bankers the entire bene, of the issue and circulation of small notes?

As long as silver coin is more valuable than gold, and is at a premium, so long will the people take small notes, in spite of legal enactments; for "necessity knows no law."

Virginia has long persevered in the policy of prohibiting her banks from the issue of small notes, and the people from circulating them; yet the law is a dead letter upon the statutobook, and no effort even is now made to enforce the penalties. The small notes of Maryland and other States supply the circulation, and the profit accrues to the Maryland and other foreign bankers.

Mr. Bowie is an estimable gentleman and true Marylander: the interests of his State are in good keeping. But Congress will naturally inquire whether these interests are to be further promoted at the expense and inconvenience of the citizens of the District.

To the Editor of the American Telegraph. DEAR SIR: Your notice on the 15th instant of the very bad conduct of the parties therein named has been spoken of by many as very just, from what they themselves have seen of the action of the persons who have continu ally annoyed me day and night when I am on the streets and avenues of the city of Washington and Georgetown, since the 24th of December, 1849. And I here give you my heartfelt thanks for what you have said, and ask as a favor that you will insert this, to give any person or persons an opportunity to tell the reasons why secuted me as they have done in Washington. Is it be cause I in 1830 commenced advocating a system of uni versal education, so that all would be rightly and justly ducated, so as to do their duty to God and man, and would seek to make each other happy instead of striving to ruin or destroy those that honestly differ with them? Or is it because I took up the idea of a cheap rate of postage for the people of the United States, as an auxiliary to universal education, which I advocated in 1830? Or is it because I suggested the organization of a ladies' socie-ty, to protect them against the unjust encroachments of neir employers, as was done in New York in 1834? Or is it because I practised the principles of abstinence from all that can intoxicate, and gave rise to the Washingtonian movement in Baltimore, Maryland, in 1840? Or i the city from a mob in 1842? Or is it because I wrote the city from a mob in 1842? Or is it because I wrote the article which was published in the Harford Madiso-nian, which saved the State of Maryland from repudlation in 1843? Or is it because I first suggested the plan of taking up collections for the "sufferers by famine" in Ireland, which was done November 6, 1845, in the Sun at doctrine, that in the happiness of man is the true glory of God, and who ever adds to the happiness of man hon ors God in proportion as he or they add to the happiness of man! If they do not persecute me for any of those things, why do they persecute me, the servant of God? JAMES ROBERTSON.
